Keynote speakers:

Greg Touhill

Director Gregory J. Touhill, CISM, CISSP, Brigadier General (ret), is president of Cyxtera Federal Group, Cyxtera Technologies, a secure infrastructure company which offers data center services and cybersecurity capabilities to federal agencies and departments (USA). In addition, he serves as adjunct professor of Cybersecurity at Carnegie Mellon University's Heinz College.

He serves on the boards of Bay Dynamic, Inc. and Cybersponse, Inc. as well as the Symantec Federal Advisory Board and Cyber Security Forum Initiative Advisory Boards. Prior to joining Cyxtera Technologies, he was selected by President Obama as the US government's first Chief Information Security Officer. His other civilian government service includes duties as the Deputy Assistant Secretary, Cybersecurity and Communications at the United States Department of Homeland Security; and as Director of the National Cybersecurity and Communications Integration Center, where he led national programs to protect the United States and its critical infrastructure.

He is a retired Air Force general officer, a highly-decorated combat leader, an accomplished author and public speaker, and a former American diplomat. He has received numerous awards and recognition, including most recently, the 2017 F. Lynn McNulty Tribute Award in recognition of his contributions to securing the nation from cyber threats and the 2016 Federal 100 Award for accomplishments as Deputy Assistant Secretary to improve public- and private-sector partnership to better manage risk.

Ian Taylor

Ian's story mirrors New Zealand's growth from its days as an agriculture-based economy. He laboured in the freezing works during the school holidays, was a singer in a rock and roll band in the 60's and 70's and by 1980, he had completed a law degree.

Ian founded Animation Research Ltd (ARL) in 1990. They bought their first hard drive to make their first TV commercial in 1991. The computer they used for the America's Cup in 1992 was the size of a small fridge and cost $500,000. Everything they did on that computer they can now do a mobile phone.

Today, ARL covers sports events all over the world. They also have a joint venture with Airways New Zealand, they continue to service the F1 Race Car simulator they built for one of the world's leading F1 Race Teams and they built an online Risk Assessment platform for one of the world's largest mining companies.

Ian was inducted into the New Zealand Hi-Tech Hall of Fame in 2009. In 2010, he was named North & South magazine's New Zealander of the Year and he was awarded an Honorary Fellowship of the New Zealand Computer Society. He was named a Companion of the New Zealand Order of Merit in 2012 for services to television and business, and won the Creative sector of the World Class New Zealander Awards. In 2013, he was named Outstanding Maori Business Leader of the Year.

Gareth O'Connor

Gareth has over 15 years' experience in the media and advertising industry, 7.5 years in London and 8 years in NZ, and for the last five of those years he's been with PHD as a Strategy Director both in a global role with Unilever and within the NZ office in Auckland.

His career has spanned both media and creative agency life, working on a wide range of clients - IBM, Tourism Ireland, Kellogg's, Samsung, Activision, EMI, Virgin Records, Associated Press, 2degrees, Pernod Ricard, Nissan, Lotto NZ, DB Breweries, ANZ, Farmers, Mercedes-Benz, Unilever and Spark NZ.

He regularly talks at advertising and media industry training courses run by NZ's advertising governing body the Commercial Communication Council, being a regular on both their Strategy Lab & Media Lab courses, as well as mentoring marketing students at Auckland University.
